Christopher C. Angell was a senior member of the firm's Trusts and Estates department. He was a partner of the firm from 1977 to 2010. Mr. Angell specialized in estate planning, administration of trusts and estates, planning for charitable giving and philanthropy, and organization and representation of family foundations and other tax-exempt organizations. He represented high net worth individuals and families, including owners of private businesses. He served as a trustee of various trusts established by clients and their families and as a director or trustee of their charitable foundations.

Mr. Angell is a trustee of the Rx Foundation and is President of The Emily Davie and Joseph S. Kornfeld Foundation, both of which have programs in the field of health care policy. The Kornfeld Foundation also supports medical research, public education, and civic engagement. Under his leadership, the Kornfeld Foundation initiated and provided funding for the Robert Packard Center for ALS Research at Johns Hopkins and the National Palliative Care Research Center at the Mt. Sinai School of Medicine.

Mr. Angell previously served as a director of Bessemer Trust Company and its affiliated trust companies, and as a Trustee of Johns Hopkins University.
