

Collin Hong

Associate

chong@pbwt.com

212.336.2204

Collin Hong is an Associate in the firm's Litigation Department. He focuses his practice on life sciences patent litigation. Mr. Hong has represented major pharmaceutical companies in cases brought under the Patent Act and Hatch-Waxman Act in federal district courts and the Federal Circuit. He has also litigated medical device cases brought under the Patent Act. Mr. Hong previously served as a law clerk for the Hon. Eli J. Richardson for the United States District Court of the Middle District of Tennessee. Prior to clerking, he worked as a patent litigation associate at a law firm in New York.

Education

- Stanford Law School (J.D., high pro bono distinction, 2021)
 - Articles Editor, Stanford Technology Law Review
- Vanderbilt University, College of Arts and Sciences (B.A., summa cum laude, 2018)

Publications

- The Eleventh Amendment and Nondiverse Suits Against States, 91 U. Cin. L. Rev. 741 (2023)