Joyce Nadipuram is an Associate in the firm's Litigation Department. She advises leading global biopharmaceutical and medical technology companies on government investigations and high-stakes life sciences litigation. Joyce handles internal and government-facing investigations involving the False Claims Act (FCA), Anti-Kickback Statute (AKS), and other healthcare regulatory frameworks. In addition to investigations work, Joyce manages high-stakes complex commercial and patent disputes affecting nascent technologies, core products, and pipeline assets. She plays a central role across all phases of litigation—from pre-suit strategy and discovery through trial and appeal. She also advises on pre-litigation patent diligence in emerging areas, including cell and gene therapies. From 2019 to 2020, Joyce served as a law clerk to the Hon. Michael A. Shipp of the United States District Court for the District of New Jersey. Prior to clerking, she worked as a patent litigation associate at a law firm in New York, where her clients included major biopharmaceutical companies.
